

NEWNHAM COLLEGE CAMBRIDGE

MARGARET ANSTEE RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP
2019-2023

Applications are invited from outstanding women graduates whose doctoral degrees are complete or very near completion, for a Stipendiary Research Fellowship (“Margaret Anstee Fellowship”) in subjects related to economic and social development and/or international relations.

The successful candidate will work in the new Margaret Anstee Centre for Global Studies (“The Margaret Anstee Centre”) which was founded in 2018 at Newnham College through a legacy from Dame Margaret Anstee, a graduate of the College, and the first woman Under-Secretary General of the United Nations. The Margaret Anstee Centre promotes research into economic and social development and/or international relations, and complements work being carried out elsewhere in the University. The Centre currently has a Director (Dr Emma Mawdsley), and two Margaret Anstee Fellows (Dr Georgia Cole and Dr Daniela Sanchez-Lopez) and supports a graduate student (Supriya Roychoudhury). The Centre also hosts the Archives of the Disappeared, an interdisciplinary initiative that addresses the challenges of research, documentation, and evidence collection in the study of communities, social movements, life-worlds and cultures that have been destroyed through acts of large-scale violence.

Although based primarily at Newnham, the Margaret Anstee Fellow will be encouraged to build connections with at least one Department or Centre within the University of Cambridge, such as Anthropology, Education, Modern and Medieval Languages, Geography, History, Sociology and POLIS, and/or the Centres for African Studies, Latin American Studies, South Asian Studies, Governance and Human Rights, Global Human Movement, and Development Studies.

Applications from anyone working on economic and social development and/or international relations are welcome; particularly those with interest and experience in the following:

- development finance, development finance technology, development investing
- modernisation, infrastructures and growth corridors;
- changing ‘South-South’ and ‘North-South’ development politics
- resource extraction, governance and geopolitics;
- energy transition, energy poverty, renewables, and environmental justice
- migration, refugee studies, forced migration, and alternatives to asylum
